Bulletin and Newsletter Briefs
November 2009
prepared by CatholicCaregivers.com, a program of the Friends of St. John the Caregiver (www.FSJC.org)

Caregiving is pro-life!
"None of my friends who has a daughter or son with a serious disability is melodramatic, or self-conscious, or even especially pious about it. They speak about their special child with an unsentimental realism. It's a realism flowing out of love – real love, the kind that courses its way through fear and suffering to a decision, finally, to surround the child with their heart and trust in the goodness of God. And that decision to trust, of course, demands not just real love, but also real courage."
--Archbishop Charles J. Chaput, O.F.M. Cap.

Caregiving is pro-life!
"None of my friends who has a daughter or son with a serious disability is melodramatic, or self-conscious, or even especially pious about it. They speak about their special child with an unsentimental realism. It's a realism flowing out of love – real love, the kind that courses its way through fear and suffering to a decision, finally, to surround the child with their heart and trust in the goodness of God. And that decision to trust, of course, demands not just real love, but also real courage."
--Archbishop Charles J. Chaput, O.F.M. Cap.

Caregiving is pro-life!
"Some of you are in especially difficult situations if your spouse faces terminal cancer, Alzheimer's disease, or other serious illness. . . . We thank you for this witness and pledge the Church's support as you continue to live out your commitment."
--United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, Blessings of Age

Caregiving is pro-life!
"Some of you are in especially difficult situations if your spouse faces terminal cancer, Alzheimer's disease, or other serious illness. . . . We thank you for this witness and pledge the Church's support as you continue to live out your commitment."
--United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, Blessings of Age

www.CatholicCaregivers.com   www.YourAgingParent.com   www.FSJC.org